

Consultant or Senior Consultant Master Data Management – Enterprise Applications

Are you looking for a challenging position and your next career step in a multinational company? KPMG is expanding its consulting practice to respond to increasing market demand around large-scale ERP transformation programs. If you have a solid background or interest in Master Data Management (MDM), join our Enterprise Applications team now.

Location: Zurich

Start date: By arrangement

Your responsibilities

- Work within our multi-disciplinary enterprise application team, in close collaboration with the data analytics and new technologies' team
- Shape and actively help to further develop our data management solution
- Organize and participate in various data management events and exchange your expertise with our customers
- Advise our clients in the area of master data management, may it be in the definition of data strategy, assessment of data quality, the implementation of data governance or data maintenance
- Have the opportunity to work in other IT-related projects to further develop your know how in the areas of data management and enterprise applications

Your profile

- Master or bachelor degree, ideally with strong focus in (business) informatics or similar
- Senior Consultant: 2-4 years of experience in the area of MDM, preferably as an external consultant, a master data manager or as a data quality manager
- Consultant: first relevant experience in consulting and/or experience with enterprise applications is highly preferred
- Expertise in designing and implementing master data processes in ERP environments
- Sound knowledge of data quality management processes
- Understanding of one or more existing MDM solutions (SAP NetWeaver MDM, Informatica MDM, IBM InfoSphere MDM or Oracle MDM)
- Experience with data analysis methods and tools including Excel, Access, SQL, etc.
- Fluent in German and English

Your future team

At KPMG, you collaborate with designated subject matter experts and are part of a culture that fosters continuous learning off and on the job. Our international and dynamic team stands out through its positive and motivating environment that focuses on management consulting rather than hands-on system configuration. You will get the chance to perform engagements for major international companies where you can expand your network and further develop your career in management consulting.
